Phoenix (CNN) – On primary day in Arizona, Republican Senator John McCain seemed a man of few words considering his front runner status. Joined by his wife, Cindy, who was wearing a leopard print suit, McCain voted at Phoenix's Madison Camelview Elementary School shortly after 9 a.m. MST. He chatted briefly with school kids and their parents then gave 21 seconds of remarks to the gathered press before refusing to take questions.

PHOENIX - With Arizona's primary elections right around the corner, interest in voting registration has spiked.

According to Secretary of State Ken Bennett, by the end of July, the state had 3,102,876 registered voters.

"These growing figures are a positive sign that Arizona voters are paying attention this political season," Secretary Bennett said. "Hopefully, these same voters will turn out and cast ballots on Election Day."

Polls opened at 6 a.m. Tuesday for Arizona's primary election, which will set the field for races from U.S. Senate to local constable.

Polls are open until 7 p.m. Voters must bring identification with them to the polls, either one piece of valid identification that contains a photo, such as a driver's license; or two pieces of ID if there is no photo, such as a voter ID card, utility bill or recent bank statement.

People still holding vote-by-mail ballots must walk them into their scheduled polling place; it is too late to mail them in.

Alternatively, voters can drop off their ballots at the local county recorder's office.

Information on polling places, county recorder offices, and voter ID are available through the Arizona Secretary of State's office at www.azsos.gov or by calling 602-542-8683.

Secretary of State Ken Bennett is projecting a turnout of 20 to 25 percent.

Elections results will start to roll out at 8 p.m., when the early-ballot tally is released. Results will be available on the Secretary of State's website, as well as at www.results.azcentral.com.

The primary results will determine the nominees of Arizona's various political parties for statewide and local offices. The general election is Nov. 2.

In addition, cities around the Valley are holding council elections. They include Chandler, El Mirage, Glendale, Mesa and Peoria. For those elections, contact your local city hall for polling and other election-related information.

'Voter Apathy' Could Mean Low Primary Turnout

Updated: Monday, 23 Aug 2010, 10:40 PM MDT
Published : Monday, 23 Aug 2010, 10:40 PM MDT

PHOENIX - The candidates in several heated races will be decided Tuesday, and there's a lot at stake. Normally we've seen a lot of interest in primary races, but election officials are predicting low voter turnout – why?

With all the publicity and airtime, you'd think voters would be rushing to the polls, but that may not be the case.

The Secretary of State's Office is expecting 20-25 percent of voters to hit the polls Tuesday. That's because turnout is typically low in an off-year election, in between presidential election years, and because the primary is in August, instead of September, and many Arizona snowbirds haven't returned to the valley yet.

Political analyst Mike O'Neil has his theory: "It has been a

PHOENIX - Eddie Ventura made sure to cast a ballot in Arizona's primary elections but didn't have much company at his polling place near 36th Street and McDowell Road in Phoenix.

"It's very sad," said Ventura of the low turnout. "Every one of us can make a difference, impacting the community and helping the country."

For every person like Ventura who did vote, experts say another four voters did not.

And on a day where the temperature exceeded 110 degrees, Mother Nature didn't help boost turnout.

"It's the heat," said Paul Lewis, referring to the reason for the low turnout. "The heat has a lot to do with it."

Voter Turnout in Arizona Primary Exceeds Expectations

Updated: Tuesday, 31 Aug 2010, 7:15 PM MDT
Published : Tuesday, 31 Aug 2010, 7:15 PM MDT

PHOENIX - All the ballots have been counted and recorded! Gathering results for the Arizona primary went smoothly, according to the Maricopa County Elections Director.

"About 75 percent of the people voted by mail and the other 25 or so voted from the precincts, but the tabulation went well, we had a big storm on election night and that slowed things down for a little while, but we were able to recover," says Karen Osborn.

Statewide, nearly 934,000 ballots were cast.

The Secretary of State's Office says voter turnout was nearly 31 percent, which is higher than expected. Election officials were predicting somewhere between 20 and 25 percent, but some heavily-publicized races may have drew voters to the polls.

Final, unofficial results are available now. A state canvass to certify official election results for federal, statewide and legislative races is scheduled for Sept. 7. No recounts are expected.

High humidity and climbing temperatures have sparked an excessive heat warning for the Phoenix area that is expected to last until Wednesday evening.

than usual. Literally. Temperatures of around 110 degrees in the Valley (and hit 115) appear to be keeping many voters out of the heat and humidity, state officials said.

Gov. Jan Brewer's Republican challenger J.D. Hayworth, who got a boost from Party groups around the state, then faltered after McCain allowed him appearing in commercials that touted "free money" grants.

"The heat 'could dampen turnout, we just don't know,' said Matthew Benson, an Arizona Secretary of State's office. The office is projecting about 20 percent of the state's primary elections. Arizona has 3 million registered voters, which would be on par with years past.

More than half its votes to have already been cast through early voting, or through mail-in ballots.

Working the heat has meant a slow day at the polls in the state.

"I was working the polling stations so excited to see me when I voted today," said Mr. Benson, who voted in Scottsdale.

If power has not been restored by the time the polls close please follow all the standard processes:

1. Edge will be running on power and should be able to close under standard procedures.
2. Insight will not be able to be close. Follow regular process for removal of memory pack and sealing. SIGN and place the Insight tape with the pack.
3. Ballots in Door #2 will go in the black bag as normal (there will not be a second results tape for the black bag)
4. Ballots in Door #3 have not been counted, and will need to go in the Misread/Unread envelope. There will be more than normal. Have BWs write on the outside of the envelope that their power was out. These are LIVE ballots and have not been counted. They go in the GREEN bag.

 - Bolsas negras de boletas del lugar de votación
 - Boletas de votación temprana
 - Boletas sacadas para la auditoría manual
 - Sobres de boletas de candidatos por escrito

- Después de abrir sólo las cajas marcadas con los distritos y extraer manualmente esos lotes aún nos faltaban algunas boletas.
- Así que volvimos y pasamos todas las boletas por la máquina para sortear los recintos aplicables.
- Ésto localizó las boletas faltantes en casos donde el número de recinto y el número de boletas en el lote habían sido transpuestas en la etiqueta de la caja, o una o dos boletas se habían mezclado dentro del lote arriba o abajo en la caja, o un lote se perdió en una caja con numerosos lotes.

La General está aquí...

- Hubo numerosos desafíos de corte que también impactaron a quién pasaría hacia la Boleta General.
- Eventualmente todo se determinó justo a tiempo para empezar a enviar las boletas a los votantes UOCAVA (Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act) el 18 de Septiembre.
- Debido al tiempo y para asegurar cumplimiento con la Ley MOVE:

- Aumentamos los envíos por correo de 937 militares nacionales de costo general a primera clase.
- A los votantes en el extranjero (tanto militares como civiles) les son enviados a través de DHL

La General está aquí...

- También tenemos más de 800,000 votantes que ya han solicitado una boleta temprana para la General (tanto PEVL como votantes que la quieren sólo para ésta elección)!
- Tenemos MUCHOS folletos de Elecciones Limpias y los Folletos Publicitarios de la Secretaría de Estado sobre las proposiciones a nivel estatal en Inglés, Español, y Letra Grande para cualquier persona que los necesite.
